ANSWER

(to the Petition for Disqualification dated 1 December 2021)

Respondent FERDINAND ROMUALDEZ MARCOS, JR. ("BBM"), through undersigned counsel and unto the Honorable Commission, respectfully submits this Answer to the Petition for Disqualification dated 1 December 2021 ("Petition") and in support thereof states :

I.
TIMELINESS

1. On 21 December 2021, BBM received a Summons with Notice of Preliminary Conference dated 20 December 2021 from the Honorable Commission, directing him to file his Answer within five (5) days from receipt thereof.

2. However, the 5th day, 26 December 2021, falls on a Sunday. Hence, BBM has until the next working day, 27 December 2021, to file Answer.

II. STATEMENT OF THE CASE

3. The Petition seeks to disqualify BBM as a candidate for President of the Republic of the Philippines, relative to the 9 May 2022 National and Local Elections, on the grounds that he is perpetually disqualified from holding any public office, that he was allegedly convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude; and that he was allegedly sentenced to a penalty of imprisonment of more than eighteen (18) months.¹

4. Contrary to the petitioners' allegations however, the penalty of perpetual disqualification has never been imposed against BBM. Likewise, BBM has neither been convicted by final judgment of a crime involving moral turpitude nor sentenced by final judgment to suffer imprisonment for more than eighteen (18) months.

III. COUNTER-STATEMENT OF FACTS

5. From 1980 to 1983, BBM was the Vice Governor of Ilocos Norte. Thereafter, from 1983 until February 1986, he served as the Governor of said province.

6. Since BBM was a government official, the Provincial Government of Ilocos Norte, as BBM's employer, was mandated by law to deduct and withhold his income taxes.² Thus, BBM's income taxes for taxable years 1982 to 1985 were automatically withheld by the Provincial Government of Ilocos Norte. Attached as Annex "1" is a Certification from the Local Finance Committee of Ilocos Norte stating that "taxes due were withheld against the salary of the Honorable Ferdinand R. Marcos, Jr. during his term as Governor for the year 1982-1985."

7. In February 1986, a revolution now dubbed as "EDSA I" broke out and overthrew the entire government. BBM and his family were removed from office and were forced to go into exile in Hawaii, U.S.A. BBM was barred from returning to the Philippines until 1991.

8. From 20 September 1991 until 20 October 1991, in a span of just one month, a barrage of eight (8) criminal informations for violations of Sections 45 (non-filing of income tax returns) and 50 (non-payment of deficiency taxes) of the National Internal Revenue Code ("NIRC") was filed against BBM.³

9. The trial court convicted BBM of the offenses charged. On appeal, the Court of Appeals acquitted BBM of the criminal charges of non-payment of deficiency taxes for the taxable years 1982 to 1985. However, BBM was ordered to pay a fine plus interest for his failure to file income tax returns for aforesaid years.

10. Initially, BBM appealed the decision of the Court of Appeals to the Supreme Court. However, on 8 August 2001, BBM withdrew his appeal. The decision of the Court of Appeals became final and executory on 31 August 2001. BBM paid the deficiency taxes and fines on 27 December 2001.

11. Since then, BBM has filed his COC numerous times for various elected positions. In 2004, he ran for and served as Governor of Ilocos Norte. In 2007, BBM ran for and served as Member of the House of Representatives. In 2010, BBM ran for and served as Member of the Senate. BBM likewise ran for Vice President in 2016.

12. In all these instances, BBM publicly and openly represented that he was eligible for the position he was running for. Not once was BBM's eligibility questioned.

13. Then, on 6 October 2021, BBM filed his COC for the position of President of the Philippines.

³ QC-RTC Criminal Cases No. Q-92-29213, Q-92-29212, Q-92-29217, Q-92-2916, Q-92-29215, Q-92-29214, Q-91-24391, and Q-91-24390.

14. Thereafter, the petitioners filed the Petition. According to the petitioners, on account of the CA Decision in the case People of the Philippines v. Ferdinand R. Marcos, Jr., CA-G.R. CR No. 18569, October 31, 1997, BBM should be disqualified to be a candidate for President of the Republic of the Philippines because :

- a) he is perpetually disqualified from holding any public office;
- b) he was convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude; and
- c) he was sentenced to a penalty of imprisonment of more than eighteen (18) months.

15. As shall be demonstrated below, the Petition is based entirely on irrelevant, baseless and misleading statements. It is an affront to our judicial process and should be dismissed forthwith.

IV. ARGUMENTS

- A. BBM's conviction of failure to file tax returns did not disqualify him from holding any public office.
 - 1. Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC is not applicable in this case.
 - 2. Even if Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC is applicable, BBM is still not disqualified from holding public office because the penalty of disqualification is not ipso facto imposed upon the mere fact of conviction and neither the Regional Trial Court nor the Court of Appeals imposed the said penalty.

- B. BBM was never convicted by final judgment of a crime involving moral turpitude.
 - 1. Even if BBM was convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude, the disqualification has long been automatically removed.
- C. BBM was never sentenced by final judgment to a penalty of more than eighteen months of imprisonment.
- D. Retroactive effect must be given to R.A. 10963 which decriminalized the non-filing of annual income tax return by pure compensation income earners.

V.
DISCUSSION

- A. BBM’s conviction of failure to file tax returns did not disqualify him from holding any public office.
 - 1. Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC is not applicable in this case.

16. Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC, which the petitioners cite as basis for BBM’s alleged disqualification, was not in the original 1977 NIRC. The said section was merely introduced by Presidential Decree No. 1994 (“PD 1994”) which took effect in 1 January 1986.

17. In the case at bar, BBM simply failed to file his tax returns for taxable years 1982 to 1985. The table below shows the respective dates of mandatory filing of tax returns and the corresponding dates of consummation of the offense of failure to file tax returns :

Taxable Year	Date of Mandatory Filing	Consummation of Offense of Failure to File Returns
1982	April 15, 1983	April 16, 1983
1983	April 15, 1984	April 16, 1984
1984	April 15, 1985	April 16, 1985
1985	April 15, 1986	April 16, 1986

18. It is clear that for the taxable years 1982 to 1984, BBM failed to file his tax returns before the effectivity of PD 1994. Therefore, the penalty of perpetual disqualification which was introduced by PD 1994⁴ cannot be applied to BBM's failure to file his tax returns for taxable years 1982 to 1984. To rule otherwise would be tantamount to a violation of the Constitutional prohibition on ex post facto laws, thus :

Art III Bill of Rights

Section 22. No ex post facto law or bill of attainder shall be enacted.

19. In *People of the Philippines v. Sandiganbayan and Paredes, Jr.*⁵, the Court defined an ex post facto law in this wise :

An "ex post facto law" is defined as a law which provides for the infliction of punishment upon a person for an act done which, when it was committed, was innocent;* a law which aggravates a crime or makes it greater than when it was committed; a law that changes the punishment or inflicts a greater punishment than the law annexed to the crime when it was committed;* a law that changes the rules of evidence and receives less or different testimony than was required at the time of the commission of the offense in order to convict the offender; a law which, assuming to regulate civil rights and remedies only, in effect imposes a penalty or the deprivation of a right which, when done, was lawful; a law which deprives persons accused of crime of some lawful protection to which they have become entitled, such as the protection of a former conviction or acquittal, or of the proclamation of amnesty; every law which, in relation to the offense or its consequences, alters the situation of a person to his disadvantage.* Wilensky v. Fields, Fla., 267 So. 2d 1, 5. (Black's Law Dictionary, Fifth Edition, p. 520.)⁶

20. Since P.D. 1994 provides for additional and greater punishments other than those obtaining prior to its enactment, its provisions therefore cannot be applied to Petitioner's alleged failure to file his tax returns for the years 1982 to 1984. This is necessarily so since by the time P.D. 1994 took effect on January 1, 1986, the mandatory dates of filing of the tax returns for the years 1982 to 1984 have long lapsed, and consequently, the offenses arising therefrom have been consummated already. To still apply P.D. 1994 for these consummated offenses is to give such law an ex post facto effect. This is unconstitutional.

21. In an effort to maneuver around the proscription on ex post facto laws, the petitioners advanced the theory that BBM "continuously committed" the offense of non-filing of tax returns from the time of his omission to file the same until the time of his conviction. This is incorrect.

22. If the petitioners' theory is to be followed — that non-filing of tax returns is a continuing offense — then it appears that such offense is, in effect, imprescriptible until and unless the accused finally files a return or is convicted of such offense. After all, if the offense is being committed every second of every day, as the petitioners would have this Honorable Commission believe, then there is simply no occasion for prescription to run. But this is not the case. Section 340 of the 1977 NIRC explicitly provides that :

Sec. 340. Prescription for violations of any provisions of this Code.

— All violations of any provisions of this Code shall prescribe after five years.

Prescription shall begin to run from the day of the commission of the violation of the law,* and if the same be not known at the time, from the discovery thereof and the institution of judicial proceedings for its investigation and punishment.

The prescription shall be interrupted when proceedings are instituted against the guilty persons and shall begin to run again if the proceedings are dismissed for reasons not constituting jeopardy.

The term of prescription shall not run when the offender is absent from the Philippines.

23. A reading of the above 1977 NIRC provision, disproves the petitioners' theory that BBM "continuously committed the crimes" of failure to file income tax return.

24. The offense of failure to file tax returns is consummated when the deadline for the filing thereof has passed. Nothing in the language of the law sets another period for the consummation of such offense. On the other hand, all violations of the 1977 NIRC, including the offense of failure to file tax returns prescribes after five (5) years "from the day of the commission of the violation of the law" or "from the discovery thereof and the institution of judicial proceedings for its investigation and punishment" and not continuously without end as posed by petitioners.

25. As for the year 1985, a more circumspect analysis of the surrounding circumstances reveals that the "perpetual disqualification" imposed under Section 252 (c) of the 1977 NIRC, as amended by P.D. 1994, likewise does not apply to BBM.

26. As early as February 1986, the whole government was overthrown through a revolution dubbed as EDSA I. No less than the Supreme Court confirms this fact in the case of *Estrada v. Desierto, et al. and Estrada v. Macapagal-Arroyo*⁷, thus :

In fine, the legal distinction between EDSA People Power I EDSA People Power II is clear. EDSA I involves the exercise of the people power of revolution which overthrew the whole government. EDSA II is an exercise of people power of freedom of speech and freedom of assembly to petition the government for redress of grievances which only affected the office of the President. EDSA I is extra constitutional and the legitimacy of the new government that resulted from it cannot be the subject of judicial review, but EDSA II is intra constitutional and the resignation of the sitting President that it caused and the succession of the Vice President as President are subject to judicial review. EDSA I presented a political question; EDSA II involves legal questions. A brief discourse on freedom of speech and of the freedom of assembly to petition the government for redress of grievance which are the cutting edge of EDSA People Power II is not inappropriate.

27. Not only was BBM removed from government, he and his family were forced to leave the country due to exigent circumstances. This fact is likewise confirmed by the Court in *Romualdez-Marcos v. COMELEC and Montejo*⁸ :

What is undeniable, however, are the following set of facts which establish the fact of petitioner's domicile, which we lift verbatim from the COMELEC's Second Division's assailed Resolution:

xxx

[I]n February 1986 (she claimed that) she and her family were abducted and kidnapped to Honolulu, Hawaii. In November 1991, she came home to Manila. In 1992, respondent ran for election as President of the Philippines and filed her Certificate of Candidacy wherein she indicated that she is a resident and registered voter of San Juan, Metro Manila.⁹

28. It took several years before BBM was finally able to return to the country. These circumstances, along with the overthrow of the government and the institution of a revolutionary government in its stead, undoubtedly show that well before the last day for filing of the 1985 tax returns, BBM was no longer a government official.

29. Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC, as amended, is clear and unambiguous; perpetual disqualification applies only if the accused is a public officer or employee. Since BBM has ceased to be a government official before the offense of non-filing of tax returns was consummated, it is therefore clear that perpetual disqualification cannot be imposed against him.

2. Even if Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC is applicable, BBM is still not disqualified from holding public office because the penalty of disqualification is not ipso facto imposed upon the mere fact of conviction and neither the Regional Trial Court nor the Court of Appeals imposed the said penalty.

⁸ G.R. No. 119976, September 18, 1995.

⁹ Underscoring supplied.

30. The CA Decision is clear: there is no perpetual disqualification from holding public office imposed on BBM. In fact, even the Regional Trial Court did not impose any penalty of perpetual disqualification from holding public office. The only penalty that was imposed was fines. The creativity and imagination of petitioners--writing and wanting what is not there--can never be sufficient grounds to disqualify BBM.

31. Nevertheless, the petitioners argue that the penalty of perpetual disqualification under Section 252 of the 1977 NIRC is deemed imposed upon conviction. However, the petitioners cannot cite any provision in the 1977 NIRC, as amended, to support their stance. The reason is simple: there is none.

32. Indeed, under the RPC, there is no need to include in the judgment of conviction that the accused shall suffer the accessory penalties because these penalties are already deemed imposed with the principal penalties to which they attach. Article 73 of the RPC is clear on this :

Article 73. Presumption in regard to the imposition of accessory penalties. - Whenever the courts shall impose a penalty which, by provision of law, carries with it other penalties, according to the provisions of Articles 40, 41, 42, 43 and 44 of this Code, it must be understood that the accessory penalties are also imposed upon the convict.

33. However, Article 73 of the RPC cannot be applied suppletorily or even by analogy to the NIRC. This is basic. Criminal laws are strictly construed- nullum crimen nulla poena sine lege. Neither the 1977 NIRC, as amended, nor the present NIRC contains a provision equivalent or even remotely similar to Article 73 of the RPC. In Laurel v. Abrogar,¹⁰ the Supreme Court explicitly stated that penal laws may not be enlarged by implication.

¹⁰ 483 SCRA 243, 266-267 (2006), citing United States v. Wiltberger, 18 U.S. 76 (1820), Kelley v. State, 119 N.E.2d 322 (1954); State v. McGraw, 480 N.E.2d 552 (1985).

As Chief Justice John Marshall declared, "it would be dangerous, indeed, to carry the principle that a case which is within the reason or mischief of a statute is within its provision, so far as to punish a crime not enumerated in the statute because it is of equal atrocity, or of kindred character with those which are enumerated. When interpreting a criminal statute that does not explicitly reach the conduct in question, the Court should not base an expansive reading on inferences from subjective and variable understanding.

34. In fact, the Supreme Court has already ruled in *People of the Philippines v. Simon*¹¹ that the rules on the application of penalties under the RPC has no suppletory effect on other statutes if the penalties thereunder are different from and are without reference to those under the RPC, thus :

[W]here the penalties under the special law are different from and are without reference or relation to those under the Revised Penal Code, there can be no suppletory effect of the rules for the application of penalties under said Code or by other relevant statutory provisions based on or applicable only to said rules for felonies under the Code. In this type of special law, the legislative intendment is clear.

35. It is clear therefore that the argument of the petitioners that BBM's conviction of failure to file tax returns carried with it the penalty of perpetual disqualification. It is also odious to the concepts of fair play and due process There is simply no principle in the NIRC which sanctions automatic and implied imposition of penalties.

B. BBM was never convicted by final judgment of a crime involving moral turpitude.

36. The petitioners aver that BBM's conviction of failure to file tax returns is a conviction of a crime involving moral turpitude. Nothing can be farther from the truth.

37. The Supreme Court has explained that for a crime to be considered as one which involves moral turpitude, such crime must involve an act of baseness, vileness, or depravity :

To consider a crime as one involving moral turpitude, the act constituting the same must have been "done contrary to justice, honesty, modesty, or good morals. [it must involve] an act of baseness, vileness, or depravity in the private duties which a man owes his fellowmen, or to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and woman, or conduct contrary to justice, honesty, modesty, or good morals."¹²

38. Through the years, several approaches were developed by the Court to determine whether a particular crime involved moral turpitude. In his concurrence in *Teves v. COMELEC and Teves*¹³ Justice Brion pointed out that three approaches have been thus far formulated. The first approach is to determine whether the act itself is intrinsically immoral, regardless whether it is punishable by law or not. Thus, in *Zari v. Flores*¹⁴, the Court elucidated that :

"Moral turpitude" has been defined as an act of baseness, vileness, or depravity in the private and social duties which a man owes his fellow men, to society in general, contrary to the accepted and customary rule of right and duty between man and woman or conduct contrary to justice, honesty, modesty, or good morals. It implies something immoral in itself, regardless of the fact that it is punishable by law or not. It must not merely be mala prohibita but, the act itself must be inherently immoral. The doing of the act itself, and not its prohibition by statute fixes the moral turpitude. Moral turpitude does not, however, include such acts as are not of themselves immoral but whose illegality lies in the fact of their being positively prohibited. Hence, the crime of illegal possession of firearm or ammunition does not involve moral turpitude for under our laws, what is punishable is the possession of a firearm or ammunition without a license or authority.

¹² Re: Decision dated 17 March 2011 in Criminal Case No. SB-28361 entitled "People of the Philippines vs. Joselito C. Barrozo", A.C. No. 10207, July 21, 2015.

¹³ 587 SCRA 1 (2009).

¹⁴ 94 SCRA 317 (1979), at pp. 322-323.

39. The second approach in determining the involvement of moral turpitude is to look at the elements of the offense. Generally, where some degree of fraud is an element, the crime in question involves moral turpitude. Thus, it has been held that violations of B.P. 22 involve moral turpitude since one of the elements of the offense, namely, "that the accused knows at the time of the issuance that he or she does not have sufficient credit with the drawee bank" implies deceit.¹⁵

40. The third and final approach considers whether the offender was motivated by ill-will in committing the offense.

41. Regardless of what approach is used, and even if all of the above-mentioned methods of determining involvement of moral turpitude is utilized, it cannot be concluded that BBM's failure to submit his tax returns is an offense which involves moral turpitude.

42. First, the failure to file tax returns is not inherently immoral. As an offense malum prohibitum, non-filing of income tax return is wrong merely because the NIRC prohibits the same.

43. Second, fraud is not an element of failure to file a tax return. In determining whether said offense was committed, the only issue is whether or not the accused filed a tax return. The presence or absence of fraud has no bearing on the commission or non-commission of the offense.

44. Finally, it cannot be denied that BBM was not motivated by any ill-will when he omitted to file his income tax returns. It must be noted that BBM was a purely compensation income earner. Thus, it was the obligation of the government to compute BBM's income taxes. It was likewise the obligation of the government to deduct and withhold BBM's income taxes. Section 94 of the 1977 NIRC provides:

SECTION 94. Return and payment in case of Government employees.- If the employer is the Government of the Philippines or any political subdivision, agency or instrumentality thereof, the return of the amount deducted and withheld upon any wages shall be made by the officer or employee having control of the payment of such wages, or by any officer or employee duly designated for that purpose.

45. In the CA Decision, the Court of Appeals categorically ruled that BBM's income taxes have in fact been withheld and paid by the Government. Thus, BBM did not stand to gain any benefit, whether financial or otherwise, from his failure to file his income tax returns. There is no advantage at all which BBM may derive from not filing his tax returns. Since the taxes on his income are computed and withheld at source by the Government itself, BBM's income taxes is paid regardless of whether he filed his tax return or not. Therefore, there cannot be any ill-motivation, let alone, an intent to defraud, on the part of BBM when he failed to file the income tax returns for the years 1982 to 1985. Explicitly, the CA Decision declared that BBM was in good faith :

It bears emphasis that the duty to withhold taxes from government employees, including elected officials like provincial governor, has been reposed by the law in the Government (Sections 90 (c); 94 of the NIRC of 1977). Consequently, any deficiency in the taxes so withheld is likewise attributable to and/or determinable by the government and not by the employee concerned (Section 91 (f), 1977 NIRC).

The appellant had a right to rely on the computation and assessment by the BIR for whatever deficiency income taxes that may be due from him, as after all, it is the government itself, which deducts from his gross income the taxes, which he should pay, over which he has no control.

46. In sum, both the facts and the law confirm that the allegations of the petitioners that failure to file tax returns is an offense, which involve moral turpitude are simply just that: allegations.

47. If only to erase any doubt in the mind of the Honorable Commission, and to further enlighten the petitioners on this point, no less than the Supreme Court has adjudged that failure to file tax returns is not an offense which involves moral turpitude. Thus, in the case of *Republic of the Philippines v. Ferdinand Marcos II and Imelda R. Marcos*¹⁶ the Court held that :

¹⁶ 595 SCRA 43 (2009) at pp. 63-64.

The "failure to file an income tax return" is not a crime involving moral turpitude as the mere omission is already a violation regardless of the fraudulent intent or willfulness of the individual. This conclusion is supported by the provisions of the NIRC as well as previous Court decisions which show that with regard to the filing of an income tax return, the NIRC considers three distinct violations: (1) a false return, (2) a fraudulent return with intent to evade tax, and (3) failure to file a return.

48. Citing Aznar v. Court of Tax Appeals, the Supreme Court went on to explain that while filing a fraudulent return with intent to defraud is a crime involving moral turpitude, the same cannot be said for mere failure to file a return.

To our minds we can dispense with these controversial arguments on facts, although we do not deny that the findings of facts by the Court of Tax Appeals, supported as they are by very substantial evidence, carry great weight, by resorting to a proper interpretation of Section 332 of the NIRC. We believe that the proper and reasonable interpretation of said provision should be that in the three different cases of (1) false return, (2) fraudulent return with intent to evade tax, (3) failure to file a return, the tax may be assessed, or a proceeding in court for the collection of such tax may be begun without assessment, at any time within ten years after the discovery of the (1) falsity, (2) fraud, and (3) omission. Our stand that the law should be interpreted to mean a separation of the three different situations of false return, fraudulent return with intent to evade tax, and failure to file a return is strengthened immeasurably by the last portion of the provision which segregates the situations into three different classes, namely, "falsity," "fraud" and "omission." (Emphasis Supplied)¹⁷

Applying the foregoing considerations to the case at bar, the filing of a "fraudulent return with intent to evade tax" is a crime involving moral turpitude as it entails willfulness and fraudulent intent on the part of the individual. The same, however, cannot be said for "failure to file a return" where the mere omission already constitutes a violation.*

49. Then, in no uncertain terms, the Court declared that :

Thus, this Court holds that even if the conviction of BBM Marcos II is affirmed, the same not being a crime involving moral turpitude cannot serve as a ground for his disqualification.

¹⁷ Citations omitted, emphasis in the original.

50. Therefore, the claim of the petitioners that BBM has been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude is utterly false.

1. Even if BBM was convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude, the disqualification has long been automatically removed.

51. Assuming arguendo that the offense of failure to file return is a crime involving moral turpitude, Section 12 of the OEC provides that the disqualification to be a candidate shall be automatically removed after the period of five (5) years from service of sentence, thus:

SECTION 12. Disqualifications. - Any person who has been declared by competent authority insane or incompetent, or has been sentenced by final judgment for subversion, insurrection, rebellion or for any offense for which he has been sentenced to a penalty of more than eighteen months or for a crime involving moral turpitude, shall be disqualified to be a candidate and to hold any office, unless he has been given plenary pardon or granted amnesty.

This disqualifications to be a candidate herein provided shall be deemed removed upon the declaration by competent authority that said insanity or incompetence had been removed or after the expiration of a period of five years from his service of sentence, unless within the same period he again becomes disqualified.
[Emphasis supplied]

52. In the CA Decision, the Court of Appeals ordered BBM to pay a fine of Php2,000.00 for each charge in Criminal Cases Nos. Q-92-29213, Q-92-29212 and Q-92-2917 for failure to file income tax returns for the years 1982, 1983 and 1984; and the fine of Php30,000.00 in Criminal Case No. Q-91-24391 for failure to file income tax return for 1985, with surcharges.

53. BBM initially intended to appeal the foregoing CA Decision and filed a Motion for Extension of Time to file a Petition for Review on Certiorari with the Supreme Court. However, BBM subsequently withdrew the motion which was granted by the Supreme Court in its Resolution dated 8 August 2001. Thereafter, an Entry of Judgement was issued on 31 August 2001.

54. On 27 December 2001, BBM complied with the CA Decision by paying the deficiency taxes, as well as the fines. Attached as Annex "2" is the Certification attesting that the deficiency taxes and fines have been paid as early as 27 December 2001.

55. Clearly, even assuming that BBM's conviction for failure to file tax returns involves moral turpitude, any disqualification has been automatically removed upon the lapse of five years from the payment of fines and penalties on 27 December 2001.

56. Thus, as early as 28 December 2006, BBM was no longer disqualified to be a candidate and hold public office.

C. BBM was never sentenced by final judgment to a penalty of more than eighteen months of imprisonment

57. At the outset, it bears stressing that BBM was not sentenced by final judgment to a penalty which involves imprisonment. Section 12 of the OEC provides :

Sec. 12. Disqualifications. - Any person who has been declared by competent authority insane or incompetent, or has been sentenced by final judgment for subversion, insurrection, rebellion or for any offense for which he has been sentenced to a penalty of more than eighteen months or for a crime involving moral turpitude, shall be disqualified to be a candidate and to hold any office, unless he has been given plenary pardon or granted amnesty.

58. A plain reading of Section 12 of the OEC readily reveals that it is not enough that a person was convicted for an offense that carries a penalty of more than eighteen (18) months. In order to be a ground for disqualification thereunder, the court must have actually sentenced the person in question to more than eighteen months of imprisonment.

59. The petitioners themselves admit that the decision of the Court of Appeals in CA-G.R. CR No. 18569 became final and that BBM was not sentenced to imprisonment. Thus, the situation of BBM falls outside the purview of Section 12.

60. Nonetheless, the petitioners aver that the Court of Appeals made a mistake by merely imposing a fine and deleting the penalty of imprisonment. The petitioners appear to be assailing the final decision of the Court of Appeals.

61. It needs no elaboration that the Honorable Commission is bereft of any power to nullify decisions of the Court of Appeals, especially when such decisions do not even pertain to any election law. Neither Article IX C (2) of the 1987 Constitution nor Section 52 of the OEC confer expressly or impliedly such power to COMELEC. If the petitioners are indeed assailing the Decision of the Court of Appeals, they have most certainly brought their cause to the wrong forum.

62. Furthermore, the petitioners attempt to mislead this Honorable Commission by quoting inapplicable laws. To be clear, from 1982 to 1985, Section 73 of the 1977 NIRC was the governing provision insofar as the penalty for failing to file a return is concerned, thus :

Section 73. Penalty for failure to file return or to pay tax.- Any one liable to pay the tax, to make a return or to supply information required under this Code, who refuses or neglects to pay such tax, to make such return or to supply such information at the time or times herein specified in each year, shall be punished by a fine of not more than two thousand pesos OR* by imprisonment for not more than six months, or both.

63. When the amendments by P.D. 1994 took effect, Section 288 of the 1977 NIRC likewise stated :

Section 288. Failure to file return, supply information, pay tax, withhold and remit tax.- Any person required under this Code or by regulations promulgated thereunder to pay any tax, make a return, keep any records, or supply any information, who willfully fails to pay such tax, make such return, keep such records, or supply such information, or withhold or remit taxes withheld, at the time or times required by law or regulations, shall, in addition to other penalties provided by law, upon conviction thereof, be fined not less than five thousand pesos nor more than fifty thousand pesos, OR imprisoned for not less than six months and one day but not more than five years, or both.

64. Thus, even if the Honorable Commission may annul and correct the final decisions of the Court of Appeals, there is nothing to correct as at all since the law effective during the relevant period gives the courts the discretion to impose either fine, imprisonment, or both.

D. Retroactive effect must be given to R.A. 10963 which decriminalized the non-filing of annual income tax return by pure compensation income earners.

65. With the advent of R.A. 10963¹⁸ ("TRAIN"), persons receiving purely compensation income are no longer required to file annual income tax returns. Section 14 of TRAIN added a new section in the 1997 NIRC, Section 51-A, and the same provides that :

Sec. 51-A. Substituted Filing of Income Tax Returns by Employees Receiving Purely Compensation Income - Individual taxpayers receiving purely compensation income, regardless of amount, from only one employer in the Philippines for the calendar year, the income tax of which has been withheld correctly by the said employer (tax due equals tax withheld) shall not be required to file an annual income tax return. The certificate of withholding filed by the respective employers, duly stamped 'received' by the BIR, shall be tantamount to the substituted filing of income tax returns by said employees.

66. It therefore follows that non-filing of annual income tax returns by pure compensation income earners is no longer punishable under the 1997 NIRC, as amended by TRAIN.

67. It is a hornbook doctrine in Philippine Criminal Law that Penal Laws shall be applied retroactively insofar as they favor persons found guilty of committing an offense. This principle has in fact been codified in Article 22 of the Revised Penal Code which provides that :

Article 22. Retroactive effect of penal laws. - Penal Laws shall have a retroactive effect insofar as they favor the persons guilty of a felony, who is not a habitual criminal, as this term is defined in Rule 5 of Article 62 of this Code, although at the time of the publication of such laws a final sentence has been pronounced and the convict is serving the same.

68. The doctrine was recently applied in *Hernan v. Sandiganbayan*¹⁹ where the Court emphasized that :

On a final note, judges, public prosecutors, public attorneys, private counsels, and such other officers of the law are hereby advised to similarly apply the provisions of RA No. 10951 whenever it is, by reason of justice and equity, called for by the facts of each case. Hence, said recent legislation shall find application in cases where the imposable penalties of the affected crimes such as theft, qualified theft, estafa, robbery with force upon things, malicious mischief, malversation, and such other crimes, the penalty of which is dependent upon the value of the object in consideration thereof, have been reduced, as in the case at hand, taking into consideration the presence of existing circumstances attending its commission. For as long as it is favorable to the accused, said recent legislation shall find application regardless of whether its effectivity comes after the time when the judgment of conviction is rendered and even if service of sentence has already begun. The accused, in these applicable instances, shall be entitled to the benefits of the new law warranting him to serve a lesser sentence, or to his release, if he has already begun serving his previous sentence, and said service already accomplishes the term of the modified sentence. In the latter case, moreover, the Court, in the interest of justice and expediency, further directs the appropriate filing of an action before the Court that seeks the reopening of the case rather than an original petition filed for a similar purpose.

¹⁹ 847 SCRA 552 (2017), at p. 577.

69. The retroactivity of statutes favorable to the accused is not limited to instances where the offense in question involves the Revised Penal Code. In *Ho Wai Pang v. People of the Philippines*²⁰, the Court applied the lighter sentence for illegal transportation of methamphetamine under R.A. 7659 even though the prevailing law at the time of commission of the offense was R.A. 6425, thus :

xxx

We agree. In People v. Doroja, we held :

In People v. Martin Simon (G.R. No. 93028, 29 July 1994) this Court ruled (a) that the amendatory law, being more lenient and favorable to the accused than the original provisions of the Dangerous Drugs Act, should be accorded retroactive application, x x x.

And, since "reclusion perpetua is a lighter penalty than life imprisonment, and considering the rule that criminal statutes with a favorable effect to the accused, have, as to him, a retroactive effect", the penalty imposed by the trial court upon petitioner is proper. Consequently, the Court sustains the penalty of imprisonment, which is reclusion perpetua, as well as the amount of fine imposed by the trial court upon petitioner, the same being more favorable to him.²¹

70. In the present case, the amendment brought about by TRAIN effectively decriminalized the non-filing of annual tax returns insofar as pure compensation income earners are concerned. Such decriminalization has a retroactive effect to BBM's case. As a consequence, whatever penalties that have been imposed against BBM have already been remitted or extinguished.

PRAYER

WHEREFORE, premises considered, it is respectfully prayed that the Petition dated 1 December 2021 be DISMISSED for lack of merit.

²⁰ 659 SCRA 624 (2011), at pp. 640-641.

²¹ Citations omitted.

Other reliefs as may be just and equitable under the circumstances are likewise prayed for.
